

COLLISION AT SEA.

Over One Hundred Victims Go to the Bottom. Off Barnagat.

The steamship Vizcaya, of the Spanish-American Line, collided with a four-masted schooner on Thursday evening, when six miles off Barnagat, and both vessels sank almost immediately. The schooner Humboldt, which arrived in Brooklyn, Friday morning from Brazil, rescued eight of the crew, the first and second officers, the engineer and surgeon of the Vizcaya. So far as is known at present these are the only persons out of a total crew and passenger list of eighty-eight of the Vizcaya and the crew of the unknown schooner that have been saved. It is feared that all the others have been lost. The details are meager. The Vizcaya left Brooklyn Friday at 1 p. m. for Havana and other Cuban ports. She had a large cargo of freight, a crew of seventy-seven and nine regular passengers. There were others on board, however, who are not entered on the passenger list. At 8:30 on Thursday evening a large, four-masted schooner came in sight. She was a much larger vessel than the Vizcaya, and immediately bore down upon her. Her bowsprit struck the steamship's bows, and the two vessels rolled overboard, carrying away the bridge and cabin. The captain of the Vizcaya, who was standing on the bridge, was instantly killed. Within minutes after both vessels had sunk, and the passengers and crews were struggling in the water. There were tremendous shrieks and cries, which were heard by the people on board the Humboldt. The captain of that vessel headed for the spot where the cries of distress were heard as quickly as possible, and saw the spars and masts of the sinking vessel disappear. Several persons could be seen struggling in the water. Boats were lowered and twelve persons were picked up. The cries were hushed and not another could be seen. After waiting some time the Humboldt resumed way. A negro was picked up by a small boat afterward. He belonged to the Vizcaya. The captain and crew of the unknown schooner are supposed to have been drowned. It is believed that over one hundred lives were lost by the collision.

A TEST CASE.

The Leavenworth Times Again Stopped by the Postmaster, and Brings Suit, on a New Basis.

Following his proceeding of Thursday, Postmaster Ritchie again threw the mailed edition of the Leavenworth Times out of the mail Friday morning. The paper was unmailable because it reprinted the list of the Catholic Fair refuges in giving an account of the Leavenworth massacre. Postmaster General Wanamaker sustains Postmaster Ritchie, and in reply to his telegram of inquiry simply stated: "Unmailable." Friday afternoon suit was filed by the Times in the district court against Postmaster Ritchie for $10,000 damages. The claim is made that no law can be found in an American newspaper to print the news.

Terrible News From Russia.

The Vossische Zeitung confirms the report from Warsaw that while a number of persons were leaving Russia, their intention being to emigrate to Brazil, they were fired upon by the Russian frontier guard at Slupca. Knocked Out.

Friday morning the Ohio Supreme Court overruled the application of Louis Beemelin et al. for leave to file a petition in error, in the proceedings to enjoin Mayor Mosby from appointing the members of the new board of city affairs for Cincinnati. These three were in Iowa when Indians and bears made their homes in the hills of Burlington and vicinity, and have dwelt there ever since. Their deaths occurred within a few minutes of each other.

ESCAPE FROM JAIL.

Bright and Successful Plan of John C. Turlington, the Missouri Desperado.

John C. Turlington, the noted desperado, who has been confined in the county jail at Booneville, Mo., for the past six months, effected his escape Saturday night in a clever manner. The guard who had given him his supper at 4 o'clock, and left Turlington's cell open so that he might have his usual execution as soon as he escaped, was left alone. Turlington took advantage of the opportunity to make his escape, which presented itself when the two deputies went into the room to prepare for their supper and went to the dining-room. Then Turlington emerged from his place of concealment, and escaped by the window, which he had opened by the use of a key. He was seen by the guard, who was on duty, and immediately bore down upon her. Her bowsprit struck the steamship's bows, and the two vessels rolled overboard, carrying away the bridge and cabin. The captain of the Vizcaya, who was standing on the bridge, was instantly killed. Within minutes after both vessels had sunk, and the passengers and crews were struggling in the water. There were tremendous shrieks and cries, which were heard by the people on board the Humboldt. The captain of that vessel headed for the spot where the cries of distress were heard as quickly as possible, and saw the spars and masts of the sinking vessel disappear. Several persons could be seen struggling in the water. Boats were lowered and twelve persons were picked up. The cries were hushed and not another could be seen. After waiting some time the Humboldt resumed way. A negro was picked up by a small boat afterward. He belonged to the Vizcaya. The captain and crew of the unknown schooner are supposed to have been drowned. It is believed that over one hundred lives were lost by the collision.

WAS KICKED TO DEATH.

The Indiana Asylum Crime—Further Confirmed by the Proof of the Asylum.

Pursuant to an order from the grand jury at Richmond, Ind., which is investigating the recent murder of T. J. Blount in the Eastern Hospital for Insane by attendants, the body was again taken up Sunday and another more complete dissection was made by Dr. W. J. Fletcher, of Indianapolis, and Dr. T. J. Howies, of Muncie. The autopsy was made to discover, if possible, whether Mr. Blount's death resulted from any other cause than those already known, as the officers at the asylum had claimed before the grand jury and at other times that he had died of apoplexy, resulting from stomach, pneumonia, paralysis and several other diseases. The liver, lungs, heart, stomach, kidneys and intestines were all examined in turn, and found normal, which disputes the story that he died from other than being kicked to death. Three more fractured ribs were found, making eight in all, that were broken.

The St. Louis Lodge of the Brotherhood to Be Dissolved.

And Discharged Men and Strikers Are Re-instated.

The trouble which has existed in St. Louis for the past few days between the Western Union Telegraph operators who are, or were members of the newly organized Brotherhood of Telegraphers, and the Western Union Company, has been amicably settled. The members of the St. Louis Lodge held a meeting Wednesday, and it is officially announced that preliminary steps were taken to dissolve the local lodge. The lodge will be disbanded as soon as the regular forms necessary for such action can be gone through with. This removed all local cause for contention between the two parties, and the telegraph officials have reinstated not only the operators who voluntarily left their instruments and walked out of the office, but those who were discharged. At least outward harmony is restored, and the ripple of discontent which disturbed the troubled waters has subsided.

CAUGHT IT FROM A CAT.

Three Members of a Family Dead From Diphtheria.

The family of Robert Paul, at Midway, Wis., has been afflicted by diphtheria which was brought into the house in a singular manner. About four weeks ago a stray cat came to their home and one of the children, named Allen, played with it. Although it was noticed at the time that it discharged at the nose and mouth, nothing was thought of it until soon after when the little boy came down with black diphtheria, the most malignant kind. The doctor said he had caught from the cat. The boy died, then a second son took the disease and died. The father, mother and daughter were also stricken down and recovered. Allen, the only remaining son and support of his parents, cared for them all through their terrible sickness, holding one of the boys when dying and preparing them for their last resting place with his own hands. When the others were recovering he was taken down and died.

MANIA'S BARRICADE.

To Save Himself From the Asylum—Locked in a Room, Armed and Defying Officers and Family for Days.

Some time ago John Tunis, a boiler-maker, underwent a severe surgical operation for cancer at Baltimore. Since then he has given evidence of an unusual mind. He slept with a baton under his pillow, and his wife feared for her life. Tuesday he became so violent that his family decided to send him to an asylum. He overheard them talking about their plans to dispose of him, and with the cunning of a maniac he proceeded to defeat them. He carried a wheelbarrow full of bricks to his bedroom on the second floor, and after arming himself with a butcher knife and base-ball bat he barricaded the door and defied any one to take him. Threats and entreaties to induce him to come out were in vain, and at last his wife reported the case to the police. A policeman was constantly on watch to capture him as soon as he should open the door. Mrs. Tunis being opposed to using force, during the day he called for water several times, but could not be induced to open the door to receive it. He tied a tin kettle to the string and lowered it to the second-story window. It was filled, and he drew it up. Food was sent him in the same manner. The family moved to the second floor, and he remained in his room alone. This action on their part they hoped would cause him to try to make his escape. Several officers were concealed in the courtyard and cellar, but he was too sharp for them, and did not come out. Wednesday night his wife passed him some food through the window, and he promised her he would open the door Thursday morning. He kept his word, and at 9:30 o'clock opened the door and permitted himself to be taken.

THE CLIMAX.

Wednesday, -- November 5, 1920.

Prof. Sheff coming. See local.

Richmond must have a steam fire engine.

March weather has been "on" for a week.

Monday was the poorest court day of the year.

Too much stock running at large upon the streets.

Mrs. Crandall is building a residence on Big Hill avenue.

The wheat continues to burn at the Bonanza Mills ruins.

A shotgun is better for a burglar than a pistol or the courts.

Mr. J. D. Perkins is building a residence on Hillsdale avenue.

Twenty-five thousand turkeys wanted by Forman & Lail. See ad.

The burglars must get the shotgun route is the nearest way for them.

Supper by the ladies of the Episcopal Church to-morrow evening from 5 to 10 o'clock.

Mr. Charles Tudor, of Red Lick, is now Deputy County Clerk for his uncle, Mr. L. W. Hill.

Get a shotgun and use it freely upon every fellow you find prowling about your premises at night.

Horse thieves and burglars are entirely too numerous, and there must be both hanging and shooting done.

Squire Alberts Park is building a residence on his farm in Union precinct, near Shallowford & Gentry are putting on the roof.

W. T. Duerksen and S. P. Ross have posted their lands and say they want any hunting done they will let you know.

Mr. May Feuchtmeyer, formerly of this place, has been appointed by the Governor of Ohio one of the Board of Public Work.

Mr. David Chennault, Sr., has removed with his family from College Hill to his new residence in the eastern suburbs of Richmond.

Circuit Clerk W. H. Miller's noted saddle-horse, "Old Mike," jumped on a picket yesterday, and killed himself. He was 15 years old.

Mr. John Thorpe, formerly Deputy County Clerk, is now in charge of Dr. Heath's coal yard near K. C. depot. Call and see him.

Mr. Geo. Horstman, Piano Tuner of Miller & Co., is now in this city. Orders left at White's drug store will be delivered promptly.

County Clerk Hill's books show that the town lists transferred for the month of October amounted to a little more than $25,000, and farms to $18,400.

It is not well as a rule to take the law into one's hands, but an exception should be made in the case of burglars—shoot 'em on the spot. Never go through the formality of taking them to jail.

Ab Hall was one of the guards set to watch the exposed wheat at Bonanza Mills, Monday night. Frank Miller, colored, stole his pistol and overcame, and is now in jail with 23 others.

Mr. D. R. Forman will open to-day a wholesale drug house with headquarters at W. R. Leitch & Co.'s warehouse. His first installment of drug from Lexington Roller Mills will be received by the 11 o'clock freight.

The K. C. depot offices at Richmond and Fort Estill have again been burglarized, but no money was found—only some clothing that belonged to other parties, and at Fort Estill the burglars were scared away, leaving the clothes.

The City Council should amend the ordinance by excluding them from Second street, between Main street and the gate of Madison Female Institute, as the girls are greatly annoyed on court days in going to and coming from school.

Mr. T. H. Harris, Jr., the prominent nursery man of Mt. Sterling, is in Richmond and vicinity, putting out large numbers of trees, shrubs, vines and roses. He carries an excellent stock, and thoroughly understands his business.

Prof. J. Roland Day, of Paris, representing Robert Clarke & Co., Cincinnati, will be recalled by many of the former teachers of Madison county, as having often attended the Teachers' Institute. He is now a member of the Louisiana Legislature.

Mr. Joel W. Embury had a surgical operation performed on his leg in a hospital in Cincinnati, last week, by which a longitudinal section of the thigh bone was removed. He has been troubled with white-swellings for a year or two. He is doing reasonably well.

Directors Seamen, Chennault and Harris returned on Sunday by special train from Louisville, where they had attended a board meeting. They announce that the R. N. L. & B. to Richmond has been leased to the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia, and the remainder to Beattyville will also be leased as soon as completed. This puts Richmond on one of the strongest systems of railway in America.

Supper.

Thursday from 5 to 10 o'clock p. m., at the Laxon building on Main street, the ladies of the Episcopal Church will give a supper for the benefit of the church. Oysters, salads, celery, ices, cakes. You can take supper with the ladies instead of at home.

Horse Thief Caught.

C. T. Wells found his horse advertised in last week's CLIMAX. It was stolen and ridden by one of Foxworth's Bonanza-burglars and turned loose, its main and tail having been cut off. Mr. Wells put Constable P. B. Broadhead and Turnkey Joel Parks on his trail, and he was caught in Clark and brought back Saturday. He proved to be a smooth "coon" known as Henry Clay McKinney. He is now residing in jail in default of a $500 bond.

New Livery Firm.

Messrs. W. C. Gormley and H. C. Traynor have bought of Mr. Charles Hunley his brick livery stable on Irvinestreet opposite the jail. Possession, December 1st.

This should prove a prosperous firm, as Mr. Gormley is thoroughly familiar with the saddle and harness business and buys at bottom figures, while Mr. Traynor knows all about feeding and handling of horses. They will do a lively, feed and shoe business, and the saddle and harness business, and Mr. Traynor is training and driving.

The Lilly-Wilson Killing at Irvine.

John M. Wilson, County Superintendent of Public Schools of Bell county, returned, and Dr. P. A. Lilly and his brother, Grant Lilly, attorney-at-law, engaged in mortal combat at Irvine yesterday, over the vote of a colored man. Wilson was shot by Dr. Lilly, and in turn shot and killed the Doctor instantly, and then shot Grant Lilly, badly wounding him. Wilson was also shot. Mr. E. C. Park came down last night for Dr. Foster and telegraphed to Nicholasville for Dr. C. Lilly, a brother of the killed. The two Lillys have had several troubles, the past few months, and the affair of yesterday was no surprise.

Can't Down Us.

When a man puts his eye on Madison Monumental Works work, he will have no other, as evidenced by the appended paragraph from the Stanford Journal: "The case of G. G. Wine against Hon. J. S. Owsley for $1,050 for a monument, was heard until noon yesterday, when the Smith case having precedence, it was continued till next Monday. It will be remembered that there were two monuments shipped to Mr. Owsley, one by order of Mr. Wine and the other by order of Mr. W. F. Francis. Mr. Owsley took the latter and claimed that he had not given Wine any instructions to ship. Wine claims that he had a well-understood contract and the suit is to decide which is right in the matter."

Richmond's Big Sale of Lots.

The sale of 450 lots in the Dillingham addition to Richmond, advertised in the CLIMAX by the Richmond Investment Co., the past two weeks, took place on Wednesday. The day was one of a March "swinger" than a calm autumn one. There was wind and rain and snow in succession.

There had been no advertising of consequence away from home. Richmond had not claimed every thing within a thirty-mile radius, nor was there a brass-band and an imported orchestra. Least the lots sold and sold fast and for good prices, and there were no by-bids or other gerrymandering. Nor was there a lot withdrawn. Every lot put up went to the highest bidder. Nor did the deeds contain any promises of a thousand-and-one things to be done by the company to make the sales stick. There were the lots on reasonable terms, and they sold.

Three hundred and thirty-five lots sold for $91,000, and the company has 115 left. The proceeds more than repay the company for the purchase price and the expenses of surveying, etc. The 115 lots are about a good profit, and will go off at the next sale for something like $30,000. P. P. Ballard, auctioneer; Thos. Thorpe, clerk.

Considering the large number of other lots on the market, the slight advertising outside of the county, and the distance from the courthouse, the sale is a demonstration that the people regard Richmond as a growing town with a prosperous future.

It is not generally known that Richmond has more building in progress than any town in Kentucky. She has the surrounding country, the money, schools, water, and natural facilities for building a city, and that is what she is compelled to be in the near future.

Inquiring After the Church Triumphant.

A contributor says: "This church, a branch of which is located in Richmond, is attracting an increasing number of seekers after truth in this and other countries."

Mr. Beedham, a gentleman from London, England, who is acquainted with some of the newest departures of religious thought, and several of the churches, which are peculiar to this country, have been visiting Mr. L. E. Francis. Mr. Beedham has had before him the testimony of several members of this church, and has acquainted himself with its faith and practice. The result of his investigations may be summarized as follows: The Church Triumphant is not a popular church, it goes before a more intellectual belief in God and gone Christ, and an emotional admiration of His life and teachings. It requires the life practice to be a manifestation of the Divine attributes. It teaches the making of the ideal real. It shows that Christ has come the second time with power to save from sin.

The place of admission is all that a man hath. Many of its devotees have been stripped of all that earth holds dear rather than give up their convictions. The old maxim "Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost" has no place in its creed. Rather is its principle of action based upon the giving of his ability—to each according to his needs—and its sheltering arms are stretched over its children wherever they may be. We are informed that Mr. Beedham was a practical business man in London and other cities in England, and that for twenty years his occupation required the exercise of much care and caution in the investigation of alleged facts brought before him. Mr. Beedham is about to proceed to Rockford, the headquarters of the Church Triumphant.

His Liver Out of Fix.

We are not a liver specialist, but from what we know about gall, it is clear to our mind that the editor of the Nicholasville Democrat had a case of liver, last week. Indeed, his actions strongly resembled a jelly fish. He was generally warlike and energetic toward Madison. He led off with a column tirade against the Constitutional Convention collectively, and Hon. Curtis F. Burnam, the member from Madison, individually, calling him a "polished old fool," and employing other similar descriptions.

Having done up the political part of the universe, he attacked the religious, and poured out a column of wrath upon the Rev. Mr. Grinstead, of Waco, now preaching in Jessamine, heading his article, "Rev. Dr. Waco Pottery." Among the sort terms applied to Mr. Grinstead are these: "Inspired idiot preaching a special kind of religion," "dementia," "an ass in another line from the one in which he has been exhibiting," "he and his gang of gospel sharks are creating a confusion detrimental to public morals," "has caused shame, confusion and mortification in several localities," "through this emotional fever, several unimpaired persons have gone daft and lost their senses," "infinitesimal creature who is engineering the weak-minded crowd," "jumped onto the Democrat with both his big feet and displayed his assiniptuity like a yellow dog worse scared than hurt," "his name is Greyson, Grinstead, or Grinstead," "so that is the kind of a cat Dr. Grinstead is," "the irate ignoramus," "harmless lunatic and ignorant man, who graduated at a dirt pottery in Madison, which, of course, from his early training, eminently qualifies him for slinging mud at people," "a mad dog," etc., etc.

His grievance against Maj. Burnam is that he voted to reject the words "Almighty God" in the preamble of the bill of rights in the new constitution. Mr. Grinstead incurred his displeasure by offering a prayer for him because of some criticism.

Had not the McKinley bill increased the price of powder and shot, we would offer a suggestion.

A Distinguished Missourian Whose Mother Was From Madison.

That versatile writer, Mr. Samuel M. Duncan, of Nicholasville, contributes to the Jessamine Journal the following interesting article:

Gen. Elijah Gates, of St. Joseph, Missouri, who attended the burial of his only sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Buford, on Thursday, Oct. 23d, was one of the bravest of soldiers in the Missouri State Guards under Gen. Sterling Price during the late civil war. In every battle from Lone Jack to Springfield, Missouri, Pea Ridge in Arkansas, to Corinth in Mississippi, and to McCracker, Chickamauga and Franklin, Tennessee. Gen. Gates distinguished himself as one of the most courageous men in Gen. Hood's army.

At the battle of Franklin he lost his leg, and after the close of the war Gen. Gates settled down at his home in Missouri, was elected sheriff of St. Joseph county, and appointed Marshal of the State during the administration of President Cleveland, holding the office eighteen months under President Harrison.

Gen. Gates is an amiable, modest man, courteous and respectful in his intercourse, he wins the esteem and confidence of his friends and neighbors to an extent rarely, if ever, surpassed. Sincere, honest, ingenious, noble, brave, generous, he is everywhere honored and beloved by the people of Missouri. Such, indeed, is the sterling integrity of his character that a few words hesitate to regard it as the fruit of deep-rooted religious principle, under careful, parental training by the domestic friends.

Gen. Gates was the son of John Gates, Lincoln county, Ky., and was born in that county in the year 1827. His mother was the daughter of Thomas Maupin, of Madison county, a near relative of Washington Maupin, a very remarkable man, who was noted for his fearless bravery when his rights were addressed. On his mother's side he has no place in the French Revolution, who were forced to leave France when Louis XIV. revoked the edict of Nantz in 1685. His mother, if I am not mistaken, was the granddaughter of Robert Burns, a soldier of the Revolution.

The Big Fire Saturday Night.

Between 8 and 9 o'clock fire was discovered in the four-story Bonanza Roller Mills on lower Main street. The alarm spread rapidly, and as the people rushed toward the mills flames were seen to issue from a stable on Water street.

The cause of the fire was a stove in the stable, which had been used for some time, and the flames spread to the stable, and then to the mill, on the east, were in imminent danger, but Mr. M. N. Driggers, superintendent of the works, secured the use of the hose and engine at the mills of Myers & Carso, just across the street, and having had thirteen years experience in a fire department, successfully fought the fire away. It would have been something of a volcano had the reservoir of gas and the immense tank of oil taken fire.

The chemical engine, for lack of a properly organized fire company, or from some other cause, did little service. In fact, while everybody was willing to work, and did work with a will, there seemed to be no leader, and the efforts were not well directed. At a suggestion to blow up one of the residences three sticks of dynamite were brought and thrown loosely in, which had no perceptible effect. Twenty or thirty sticks, or two or three kegs of blasting powder in the little frame house, next to the mill, would have blown it higher than a kite and confined the fire to the mill.

Finally the crowd attacked the box house at the corner of Main and B streets, and by Wells & Co. as a coal office, and J. M. Riffe as a plumbing shop, the fifth house from the mill, and in course of half an hour utterly demolished it. By this time the mill was falling in and the tenement houses of Mayor J. S. Collins, situated along Main street, were ablaze. One of them was used by Ed Powell as an annex to the Central Hotel, another by John Christopher and "Drummer" White, and the other two by "General" Nelson and Dick Buckley as residences, all of whom recovered the contents.

Hard work at the fire on Water street confined the flames to the stable. Other stables including that of Buchanan & Greenleaf, with their horses, harness and carriages, were in close proximity, but saved by the free use of water and mud from a drain. The stable stood on the rear end of the property occupied by deputy sheriff L. D. Maupin, but was not in use.

The mill contained 14,000 bushels of wheat and 200,000 pounds of flour, valued at more than $25,000. The mill cost $32,000 besides the lot. On the mill and contents there was an insurance of $28,500. The loss on the mill building fell on Mr. C. D. Chennault, and considering the price he paid for the mill, was not a great deal, but he and his partner, Mr. C. W. Barnum, of Raton, New Mexico, operating the mill, will lose $10,000.

Mayor Collins' loss is $6,000, with $8,200 insurance.

The residents on both sides of Main street, for some distance, removed the contents of their houses, and the streets were considerably damaged. Wells & Co. lost several hundred dollars, and the destruction of their house and Riffe's like sum by the breakage of his wares.

The wildest rumors of attempted fires and robberies came from all directions, and men were seen going to and from guns and pistols to protect their property. Two men were seen by Mr. C. F. Moberley and daughter to strike a match in the rear of Donaldson's carriage works, corner Second and Water streets, and it is believed they were endeavoring to fire the shops, as they lay upon a narrow alleyway, and were running from the burning stable, a few minutes before. A little while after the Donaldson scare, Mr. J. D. Dykes shot twice at a man about his stable out on Third street, and not half an hour later Mr. Joe Gott fired his revolver at a man trying to break open the back door near the K. C. depot. These actual cases gave rise to the wildest rumors of men having been shot and houses fired in all parts of the town, and for a time it looked as if the Anarchists, Mafia and everybody else had been turned loose on the town.

Editor Ben Briggs, of the Mayfield Monitor, says the man who wipes his nose on his sleeve, picks his teeth with a fork, squirts tobacco juice on the cook stove and fourth, rides to mill with a cane in one end of the sack and a stone in the other, drives to market with hickory fence, deposits his money in a last winter's sock, insists on paying his taxes in coin skins and wild honey, fastens one galls with a wooden peg, and wears "possum belly" pants, is the same old poster who has no use for his home paper, and brother to the fellow who tries to do business without advertising.

HORSE NOTES.

The races by electric light at Lancaster, Ohio, were successful in every way—large crowds and fast time. The running time was 1:50 and 1:51.

Mr. Robert Bonner does not believe it possible for a trotter to trot a mile in two minutes, but he thinks Sunol can come within four seconds of that time.

John H. Wallace says the next movement will be for no one under any circumstances except in regularly-contested races against other horses.

The Directors of Charter Oak Driving Park have decided to offer $25,000 for foals of 1890, $10,000 to be trotted for in 1893 and $15,000 in 1894, $200 entrance, with a special provision that non-winners in 1893 can start in 1894 for $100.

Jacob T. Hugely, of this county, has bought of Vincent Cronwell, of Lexington, the weanling filly by Robert McGregor, dam Lady Pepper (dam of Ganexon 2:25) and Clorine, half 1:17, by Onward 2:25, for $1,325.—Daniels Advocate

NEXT THE HEAD.
Such a dear, but such a dune.
Was the head in the case,
Perfectly content to be
At the foot of the small class.
Once we promised she should have Almost any thing she would
On the day when she could say
She above the others stood.
Nought she seemed to care for,
Littering on the schoolward way,
Never looking in her book,
All absorbed in endless play.
Judge then, on surprise, at last,
Each day slipping like a head,
When she carelessly remarked,
Next the head she stood, indeed.
Next the head! Enough! Enough!
She should choose that afternoon
From the dolls that moved their eyes,
Said mamma, and sang a tune.
Who, it happened then, we asked
In our scholar's class might be
O, the innocent blue eyes,
"Boy Grey," she said, "and me."

THE IRON MAID.

How Its Arms Closed About the Neck of the Collector.

RANK HODSON. Before him stretched the long suburban street, its dreary distance marked by rows of gas lamps; behind him a waste land—once a garden, now a vast rubbish heap—and from the brick-fields beyond came faint, sickly smells of burning bricks; and on the railway embankment, built up above squalid gardens and dismal yards, he could see a red star gliding swiftly away from him. His last train had gone, and the dull beat of the policeman's bat echoed in the silence. Nine miles from London, and not a chance of a hansom! The recording angel doubtless took in the situation at a glance and erased the exclamation in the approved manner. Hodson had spent the evening with a friend, and, aided by tobacco and whisky and soda, the hourly train deserted at those of Pompeii. As he mused dolefully over the prospect a porter came out and locked the station door, and from him Hodson obtained a brief direction as to the shortest way to town. He set out, wearily, looking at the stretch of lamps vanishing in perspective, and as he walked street after street branched off to right or left, some far-reaching and others ending abruptly in a piece of waste ground and a heap of sand. By degrees, as he walked on, the houses improved; the suburban builder had allowed himself a wider scope, and for the artistic comfort of those whose business kept them all day in the dreary city had placed twin plaster lions to guard the approach of each flight of steps. The gardens, too, were some what larger; here and there green leaves showed under the lamps and Hodson scented mignonette. The road began to slope slowly to a hill, and looking up a side street, he saw the half moon rise above the plane trees. Resolutely he pressed on, listening for the wheels of some belated hansom; but into that land of men who go to the city in the morning and return again in the evening the hansom rarely comes. Hodson had resigned himself a second time to the walk, when he suddenly became aware that some one was advancing to meet him along the street. He looked at the man, and he was, therefore, no policeman; he wore a silk hat, he

to the maid, that knob was pressed, and the arms slowly tightened round his neck. You can imagine the result! As Mr. Mathias talked he stood on the platform and patted the figure affectionately. Hodson had turned away, and was gazing abstractedly about him. He did not hear a slight click; it was not much louder than the tick of a clock; but he heard a sudden whirr—the noise of machinery in motion. He turned around. And never has he forgotten the anguish and the terror on Mr. Mathias' face as those relentless arms tightened about his neck, or the shriek that ended suddenly in a choking groan. The whirling noise had suddenly changed to a heavy droning sound. Frank rose with all his might at the iron arms, and strove to wrench them apart, but utterly in vain. The head had bent down a little, and the iron lips were upon the lips of Mathias. It was five minutes before the iron maid unclosed her arms.

The letter which accompanied the figure was found unopened upon the table. It was read at the inquest. The German firm especially warned Mr. Mathias to be extremely careful in touching the iron maid, as the machinery had been closed and put in the working order. —St. James' Gazette.

Natural Gas Supply Weakens at Pittsburgh—Rate Raised Fifty Per Cent.

The directors of the Philadelphia Natural Gas Company, at Pittsburgh, at their meeting Thursday decided to increase the price of gas to private consumers 50 per cent. The advertisement in the paper of the decision to raise the rate into effect December 1. The present rate is fifteen cents per 1,000 feet, with five cents off for cash payment. The increase decided upon will make the rate twenty cents per 1,000 feet, with five cents off for cash payment, or fifteen cents per 1,000 feet. The outlook for resumption of the gas supply to the city is not favorable unless the manufacturers agree to pay the same rates as is charged to private consumers, and they say they can not afford to do so. There is no doubt that the action of the Philadelphia company in shutting off the gas from the pitting furnaces is a direct result of the fact that it can not at present undertake to make good.

Arrested For Swindling Farmers.

John R. Crittenden and William Stoff, doing business as individuals, and as a firm under the name of Crittenden & Co., were arrested Wednesday at Baltimore. It is alleged that they have been fooling agricultural points in the West with circulars offering big prices for produce, for which, upon its being shipped there by farmers, it is alleged they failed to pay.
